The Clever Farmer

Once upon a time, in a small village, there lived a poor farmer named Budi. He worked hard every day, but his land was dry and unproductive. One morning, while he was plowing his field, his plow hit something hard. When he looked closer, he found a large pot filled with gold coins.

Budi was shocked and didn't know what to do. He thought, "If I tell the king, he will take it away. But if I keep it, I might get into trouble." Finally, he decided to take the pot to the palace and give it to the king.

The king was amazed by Budi's honesty. "You are a good man, Budi," said the king. "Because of your honesty, I will reward you." The king gave Budi a small piece of fertile land near the river.

From that day on, Budi's life changed. His new land produced plenty of crops, and he became one of the happiest farmers in the village. Everyone admired his honesty and hard work.

The Street Cleaner's Son

In a crowded city lived a boy named Rafi, the son of a street cleaner. Every morning, his mother swept the streets while people passed by without even looking at her. Rafi often felt embarrassed and wished his mother had a different job.

One day, his school held an essay competition. The topic was "My Hero." Most students wrote about famous people—scientists, soldiers, and presidents. Rafi wanted to write about someone who truly inspired him, but he couldn't decide who.

That night, it rained heavily. Rafi couldn't sleep, so he went outside and saw his mother working in the rain, clearing the flooded streets to keep others safe. Her face was tired, but her eyes were full of determination. At that moment, Rafi realized how selfless and strong she was.

The next day, he wrote his essay about his mother—the street cleaner who worked quietly for the good of society. His teacher read it aloud in front of the class, and everyone applauded. Rafi finally felt proud.

From then on, he never felt ashamed again. He learned that real heroes don't need fame or wealth—they just need a heart that cares for others.

Johan (15 years old) entered the classroom with a disheveled face, out of breath because the school gate was almost closed. He complained to the teacher about the difficulties of public transportation, heavy traffic in the morning and recent unfriendly weather. He remembered his biology project and felt he had more tasks to do than the other group members. He felt he was being unfairly treated. He grumbled in his heart that he was always the victim.

Whenever the teacher tells the students to submit the assignment, Kadek (16 years old) often seems uncertain what the assignment is about. She does most of her work at the last minute. When she hands her task, it always needs revisions. She never focuses on the topic requested and misses the requirement points.

Dona (14 years old) arrives at school 15 minutes before the school bell. All her assignments are meticulously prepared and accurately done. Most of her work is done before the deadline. The teacher likes her work very much because she always puts the details in her assignment.

11. Why did Johan feel that he was treated unfairly?
   A. Because he didn't like his classmates
   B. Because he thought he got more tasks than his group members
   C. Because he failed his biology project

The Great Barrier Reef

The Great Barrier Reef, located off the northeast coast of Australia, is the largest coral reef system in the world. It stretches for more than 2,300 kilometers and covers an area of about 344,400 square kilometers. The reef consists of thousands of individual coral formations and hundreds of islands, making it one of the most diverse ecosystems on Earth.

The Great Barrier Reef is home to a wide variety of marine species, including more than 1,500 types of fish, 400 kinds of coral, sea turtles, dolphins, and even sharks. Its vibrant colors and clear blue waters attract millions of tourists every year who come to dive and snorkel to witness its natural beauty.

Unfortunately, the reef faces serious threats due to climate change, pollution, and coral bleaching. Rising sea temperatures have caused large parts of the reef to lose their color and vitality. The Australian government and several environmental organizations are working together to protect and restore this unique natural wonder.

27. What makes the Great Barrier Reef unique?
    A. It is located in the Indian Ocean.
    B. It is an artificial coral reef built by scientists.
    C. It is the largest and most diverse coral reef system in the world.
    D. It is completely free from environmental problems.
28. Why are environmental organizations involved with the Great Barrier Reef?
    A. To build new tourist resorts.
    B. To collect fish and corals for research.
    C. To promote Australia as a tourist destination.
    D. To protect and restore the reef from damage.
29. What can we infer from the text?
    A. Human activity and climate change threaten the reef's survival.
    B. The Great Barrier Reef is safe from any human activity.
    C. The government ignores the problem of coral bleaching.
    D. Tourism does not affect the reef at all.

Tokyo and Singapore are two of the most advanced cities in Asia, both known for their efficiency and high quality of life. However, they differ in several important aspects.

Tokyo, the capital of Japan, has a population of over 14 million people and is one of the busiest cities in the world. It is famous for its extensive public transportation system, cultural heritage, and cutting-edge technology. However, due to its size, Tokyo often faces problems such as overcrowding and high living costs.

Singapore, on the other hand, is much smaller and has around 6 million residents. Despite its limited land area, Singapore is one of the cleanest and most organized cities in the world. It is well-known for its strict laws, excellent infrastructure, and efficient government policies. Unlike Tokyo, Singapore is a multicultural city where English is widely spoken, making it easier for foreigners to adapt.

In summary, while both cities offer modern lifestyles and great opportunities, Tokyo represents a blend of tradition and technology, whereas Singapore symbolizes discipline, diversity, and order.

36. What is the main idea of the passage?
   A. The similarities and differences between Tokyo and Singapore.
   B. The history of Tokyo and Singapore.
   C. The problems caused by urbanization in Asia.
   D. The reasons why Singapore is better than Tokyo.\
37. What makes Singapore different from Tokyo according to the passage?
   A. It has a larger population and higher living costs.
   B. It is less modern but more traditional.
   C. It is smaller, cleaner, and more organized.
   D. It has more historical buildings and a bigger metro system.
38. What does the sentence "Tokyo represents a blend of tradition and technology" mean?
   A. Tokyo rejects modern technology.
   B. Tokyo combines old culture with modern advancements.
   C. Tokyo focuses only on cultural heritage.
   D. Tokyo prefers tradition over progress

Kevin : Hey, Maya! Have you watched the new historical movie "The Last Dynasty"?
Maya : Yes, I did last weekend. Honestly, I found it quite boring. The plot was too slow.
Kevin : Really? I thought it was fascinating! The cinematography was amazing, and the costumes looked incredible.
Maya : I agree the costumes were impressive, but the dialogue was too long and confusing.
Kevin : Hmm, maybe. But the soundtrack was brilliant — it made every scene more emotional.
Maya : Well, I guess it depends on taste. For me, a good movie should have a strong story rather than just beautiful visuals.
Kevin : Fair enough. I guess we just have different opinions.

Title: "New Community Park Opens in City Center"

Cityville, November 14, 2025 —

A new public park was inaugurated today in the heart of Cityville, offering residents green space, playgrounds, and a small outdoor amphitheatre. The Cityville Mayor, Ms. Linda Green, officially opened the park at 10 a.m. after a year of construction. According to the Parks & Recreation Department, the project cost approximately $3 million and was funded by public-private partnership. Local residents welcomed the initiative, calling it "very timely" as the city has few open recreational areas. The park also features solar-powered lighting and recycled materials in its structures. The source for the construction figures was the Cityville budget office.

No	Sentences	T	F
1.	The park in Cityville was opened before 10 a.m
2.	The cost of the project was approximately three million dollars.
3.	The project was funded solely by the government.
4.	The information about the project cost comes from the Parks & Recreation Department only.
